The horse was found by a letter carrier on the Rock Levee road Monday morning, where it had been tied by a farmer, and the buggy was located about a mile away.

Rural Mail Carrier McEndree, who was making his route Monday morning, discovered the horse tied to a fence. He recognized the animal as belonging to the Cape Girardeau firm, and he investigated. He learned that the horse has been found by a farmer, and thinking it probably had escaped from its owners, he caught the animal and tied it to his fence.

Mr. McEndree later found the vehicle. He brought the horse to the Cape on his return trip, where he turned it over to its owner. Mr. Birkman dispatched a messenger after the buggy and then reported the incident to the police.
